HAD TO BE IN PROPER FORM.

Without His Retaining Fee Young Lawyer Could Not Act.

An impecunious young lawyer recently received the following letter from a tailor to whom he was indebted:

"Dear Sir—Kindly advise me by return mail when I may expect a remittance from you in settlement of my account. Yours truly, J. Snippem."

The follower of Blackstone immediately replied:

"Dear Sir—I have your request for advice of a recent date, and beg leave to say that not having received any retainer from you I cannot act in the premises. Upon receipt of your check for $250 I shall be, very glad to look the matter up for you and to acquaint you with the results of my investigations. I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient servant, Barclay B. Coke."—Success Magazine.

To Honor Ladies of White House.

It is unfair and uncourteous in us as a nation that all of the wives of our presidents are not represented among the portraits in the White House, and it is hoped that this stigma may soon be removed, writes a correspondent. An effort is to be made to enlist the women of the states who have had the honor of having a daughter who has been the mistress of the White House to club together and place her portrait upon its walls, as the women of Tennessee did for Mrs. Polk. In this effort care will be taken that only the best artists are commissioned with the work and that a uniformity of design is followed in all the pictures.

The most historic part of the White House—that is, the collection of presidential ware—is contained in six cabinets standing in the lower east corridor of the mansion. Soon after Mrs. Roosevelt became the mistress of the mansion she saw that there was nothing in it representative of the great majority of the presidents who have occupied the high office beyond their portraits. This and the desire to save something of the presidential china which was then in the White House led her to start the collection. She was so successful in this endeavor that the collection now contains some piece of china, plate or glass which was used by every president's family except those of Zachary Taylor, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Van Buren and Johnson, and efforts are now under way whereby it is expected that the collection will be completed within a year. It has been made a part of the bureau of public buildings and grounds and is the permanent property of the government.

His Kick.

"I do wish," said Mrs. Stiles, "that you'd try to keep yourself neater." "But, my dear," protested her husband, "you're not so careful—" "I'm not? I'm certainly more careful of my clothes than you—" "That's just it. You should be more careful of me."
